Chic. Southern. Italian.

Longtime local restaurateurs Steve and Heather Potts, the owners of the city's beloved Cedar Door, are bringing a Southern take on Italian to Austin with the opening of La Volpe. At this chic space, located in Austin's Central Business District and nestled right next door to the Cedar Door on Brazos Street, executive chef Will Eason, sous chef Josh Wilson and pastry chef Amanda Neber blend traditional Italian with ultra-fresh ingredients and Southern flavors. www.lavolpeaustin.com.

Texas Made/Texas Modern The House and the Land

(October 2018, The Monacelli Press)

In Texas Made/Texas Modern, Helen Thompson and Casey Dunn, the writer/photographer team that produced the successful Marfa Modern: Artistic Interiors of the West Texas High Desert, investigate the unique brand of modernism that is so fundamental to the culture of Texas today. This Texas-centric style is focused on the relationship of the house to the site, the materials it's made of (most often local stone and wood), and the way the buildings function in the harsh Texas climate. Featuring nineteen houses across the state — from major urban centers like Dallas and Austin to suburbs and rural areas — the use of thick walls, metal roofs, courtyards, patios, dog trots, trellises or arbors connect site and place. www.monacellipress.com
